The 2026 UltraSite price list confirms the liner as its own product entry. It does not specify a universal planter fit in the source row, so compatibility must be checked against the original planter model and current manufacturer drawing before purchase. The external planter body, mounting or anchoring arrangement, decorative finish, and planting media are not included in this liner-only listing. When reviewing existing installations, verify the inner opening and drainage requirements before selecting replacements. A proper liner helps separate planting contents from a surrounding receptacle body, but the catalog entry should not imply a particular pot volume without manufacturer confirmation.
