Description

A hungry bear is fully capable of reducing any wooden trash structure to splinters to get to the trash inside. This all-steel receptacle is built to withstand that level of abuse. Its recessed, bear-proof latches insure people only can access the lid and liner entry door on the rear of the unit. Its important features are:

- All steel construction with polyester powdercoat finish
- Bear-proof latches secure the top lid and locking rear access door
- Includes removable 32 gal. square plastic interior liner
- Base has four surface mounting tabs for permanent placement
